

New Jersey Neonatal Health Trends Analysis (2000–2023)

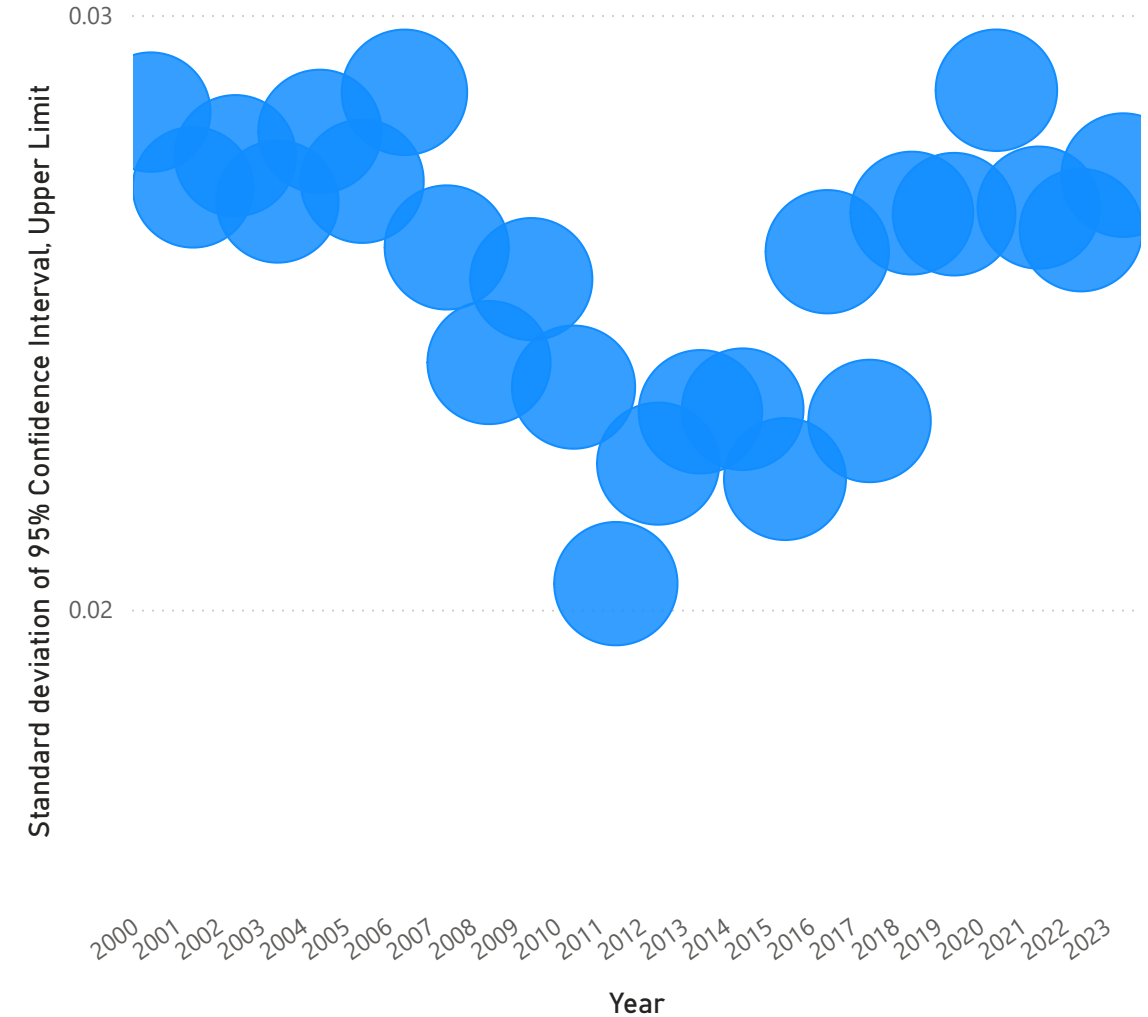

Analysis By: Yogithasiri Chevva | Created On: May 31, 2026

Analysis indicates cyclical trends in birth rates correlating with major economic markers, alongside persistent disparities in neonatal outcomes across racial/ethnic demographics.

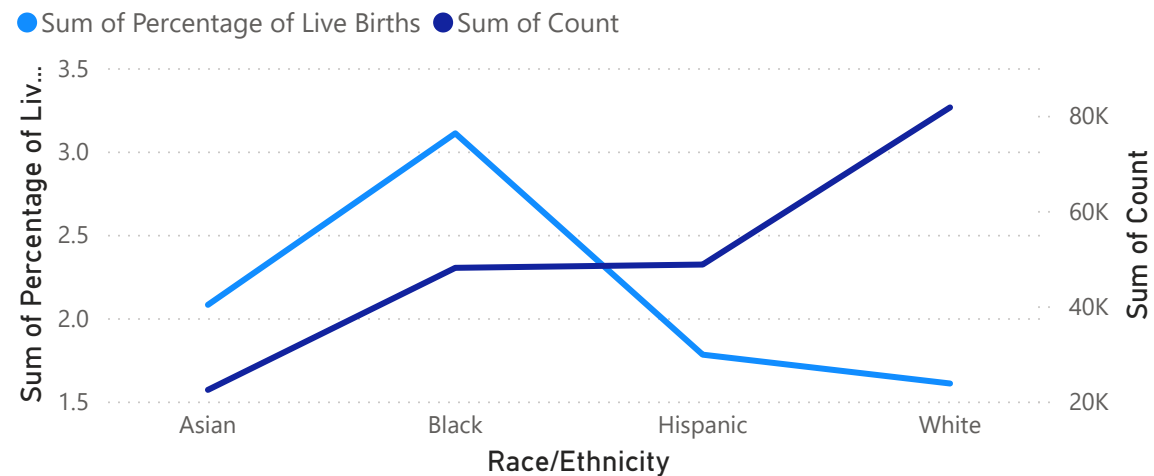

Sum of Count and Sum of Percentage of Live Births by Year

Standard deviation of 95% Confidence Interval, Upper Limit, Sum of 95% Confidence Interval, Lower Limit and Sum of Year by Year

Sum of Percentage of Live Births and Sum of Count by Race/Ethnicity

Data Source: NJ Public Health Statistics.

Methodology: Analysis utilizes 95% confidence intervals to measure statistical significance in birth outcome trends, specifically, how many babies were born healthy enough to survive birth?

Year

→

Percentage of Live Births

→

Race/Ethnicity

▼

→